Introduction. Over these 28 years, comprehensive reforms have focused on ensuring societal peace, nurturing social and spiritual wellbeing, fostering respect for national values, cultivating patriotism, and developing tolerance among youth. Significant efforts have been devoted to maintaining peace among growing populations and citizens. In today's world, strengthening global unity and harmony between nations and peoples is crucial. When society experiences stability, national tolerance flourishes. The principle of tolerance, being a cornerstone of our state ideology, serves as a vital force in uniting young people of diverse faiths and religions around shared noble goals and aspirations.

Literature review and methodology. Attention is being paid to strengthen the tolerant environment in Uzbekistan. It can be proved with the sentences of Shavkat Mirziyoyev, the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan, said: "We will focus on further developing the friendship and solidarity prevailing in our society, ensuring equal rights for all citizens, regardless of their nationality, religion or faith. The dissemination of extremist and radical ideas among them is absolutely forbidden in Uzbekistan”[1]. These attributes become permanent values when they align with an individual's character development, including their sense of patriotism, commitment, work ethic, and other personal characteristics. It's essential to cultivate both knowledge and national principles in young people's hearts. Our country's peaceful policies have successfully fostered societal stability and ethnic harmony. Through a decree signed on January 25, 2017, President Shavkat Mirziyoyev recognized national cultural center activists who enhanced the nation's tolerance and strengthened its spiritual foundations. Notably, throughout history, our great thinkers have nurtured our people with humanistic values, promoting peace, collaboration, and unity through principles of religious tolerance, compromise, and mutual respect among people of different faiths.

Therefore, it is important to educate our young people the philosophy of humanism by feeding on the spiritual heritage of the great thinkers. The interethnic conflicts, bloody wars and various destructions that are taking place in the world today are the result of the destruction of the atmosphere of tolerance in society. It is necessary to prevent the catastrophe of tragedies, the spiritual life of many young people, the negative consequences of nationalism, religious separatism and neglect of other nations. In our basic law, such cases are strongly condemned, and the basic provisions concerning state and religious relations are in line with the legal norms of developed societies. Articles 18, 31, 61 of the Constitution and the provisions of the Law on Freedom of Conscience and Religious Organizations, providing for the right of every person to profess or not to profess any religion, prohibiting the compulsion of religious views, irrespective of their national, racial or religious origin and serve as a solid foundation for the promotion of harmony among the youth of our society [2,12-13]. In the multinational country, harmonization of interests of different nations and ensuring harmony among them is one of the important factors in shaping the thinking of national statehood.

In our nation, extensive state-led reforms focusing on human rights have further reinforced principles of inter-ethnic harmony, religious tolerance, and solidarity. Our people's inherent tolerance represents a core traditional value, providing a foundation for preserving national values, ensuring religious freedom, strengthening ethnic harmony, and developing shared historical traditions.

At this current stage, balancing different ethnic interests in societal development is crucial, with particular focus on understanding how stability and tolerance influence inter-ethnic relations. Stability encompasses complex systemic aspects directly linked to tolerance. Inter-ethnic tolerance elevates cross-cultural relationships to new heights, creating opportunities for deeper connections. This process naturally strengthens the relationship between national and universal values while serving national interests.

Effective Reforms. The key political document, the “Strategy of Action” is to radically improve the effectiveness of the reforms, create conditions for the comprehensive and accelerated development of the state and society, modernization of the country and liberalization of all spheres of life. It outlines the policy priorities in the field of interethnic relations [3-36-37]. It is important to note that in inter-ethnic relations, they share their common interests and their own values. In order to ensure the cohesion of the interests of nations in multinational countries, it is necessary to develop common values and criteria in society. It is desirable to create democratic legal criteria that protect the specific traditions, customs, values and interests of nations and create conditions for their development. The unity of national interests is an important factor in shaping the thinking of the national state, that every representative of a particular nation understands the uniqueness of his homeland, under the protection of a single state, and that national consciousness, formed in the minds of citizens, provides sustainable development.

Taking all the things which are mentioned above it can be ascribed that in today's difficult situation, the issue of further strengthening friendship and solidarity among youth of different nationalities and religions in our country is of particular importance. The principle of humanity and tolerance in interethnic relations also contributes to respect for universal values and to ensuring global stability. The unity of the interests of nations is a matter of confidence, independence and the future of the nation, which will help strengthen the principles of tolerance and tolerance among the youth of our society, promote the ideas of interethnic solidarity, and promote social and spiritual development in society.

Problems and their solutions. The philosophical development of youth requires attention to moral, economic, political, social, and spiritual factors. Society must enhance young people's worldview by strengthening their connection to national values, fostering patriotism, and balancing national and universal principles. This requires enriching their philosophical knowledge, developing national consciousness, modernizing spiritual and educational domains, and understanding global trends. Analysis and results. Having analyzed all the information the following points can be drawn:

- Demonstrate the role of ethical, aesthetic, political, legal, and democratic factors in the education of young people in civil society;
- Increasing the role of spiritual values in furthering the intellectual potential of young people;
- In the process of spiritual renewal, we should pay more attention to the education of young people as harmoniously developed individuals, to create a new ethical environment, a new type of quality;
- Globalization and a vigilant attitude towards those young people;
- Wide promotion of scientific life of scientists and statesmen, scientific activity among young people.

Today, the development of society and the development of human culture are inseparably linked with the high level of knowledge, intellectual potential and enlightenment of the individual. In any society and in any society, scholars, scholars, thinkers and thinkers have played an immense role. It is worth noting that our great ancestors, rightfully proud of the achievements of our national culture, have a great respect for other cultures and strive to understand, learn them. The interrelationship of all nations and people is related to culture. In the process of interaction in society, elements of other cultures are always drawn into one national culture. Such mutual enrichment, the process of emerging commonalities in them, is called internationalization.

Great thinkers. Cultural development accelerates through international interaction and socio-economic ties. While cultures maintain unique national elements, they also share common international aspects. In Central Asia during the 10th-12th centuries, scholars made significant contributions:

- Ahmad al-Ferghani (798-865): Advanced astronomy, mathematics, and geography through works like "The Basics of Astronomy"

- Al-Khwarizmi: Pioneered mathematical principles and human reasoning methods

These thinkers promoted humanism and tolerance, and their works continue to influence global scholarship today. Abu Nasr al-Farabi contributed to world science, culture and enlightenment. He wrote over 160 works, some of which have been translated into Uzbek, Russian and other languages[4,235]. Abu Raihon Beruni works in the Khorezm Mamun Palace. He studied astronomy, physics, mathematics, geodesy, ore and other subjects. He has written 154 papers on astronomy, geography, mathematics and history. He first invented the globe. Abu Ali Ibn Sina (980 - 1037) studied logic, philosophy, mathematics and jurisprudence along with medical science. At the age of 16 he became a great referee and at 18 he became a great scholar of the East. His 35-year career is based on the attainment of perfection, knowledge and enlightenment as a result of human knowledge. The book Donishnama (Science Book) written by Ibni Sina in Persian (1031 or 1035) was not translated into any of the European languages until 1955. His work consists of three parts: Logic, Metaphysics, and Physics [5,101].

Discussion.

Interconnections between culture and other spheres of life. It is important to note that these thinkers, as encyclopedic scholars, have interpreted the cultures of the East and the West in their works. It is impossible to imagine the modern development of world scientific thinking without the works of our great ancestors, such as Khorezmian, Ferghani, Farabi, Beruni, Ibn Sina, the great contribution of the East to the development of world culture. Achievements in the development of world culture are found in every national culture. There are many examples of how East and West cultures have always been interconnected and enriched each other. Interaction of cultures, ideas about formation and development of tolerance in them, development of culture and education are closely connected with arts, religions and literature.

Events that occur within one culture may be absorbed into other cultures, transcended by their own national spirit, and thus re-acquired internationally. Some phenomena in national cultures, for example, science are international in its essence. After all, no matter what nationality the creators belong to, scientific truth is expressed in different languages, the conclusions, theorems, axioms, formulas of science are understandable to everyone. When it comes to national, international and universal elements in culture, one must pay attention to the methodological significance. The categories "nationality", "international" and "universal" constitute a dialectical association with each other, such as "singular", "private" and "general". Just as the categories of propriety and generality differ according to the degree of commonality, the categories of internationalism and humanity have some differences. Every culture is national in its essence because its creator is a specific nation with its own history and way of life. Therefore, every culture, regardless of the number of its creators, is unique and unique in its nature. But not every culture can ever be "pure" national. After all, culture of any nation has both national, international and universal elements. The events that we usually regard as national are also deeply human in nature. For example, Oriental peoples' respect for hospitality, love for children, and patience are all manifestations of human values in national colors. Such aspects are the ring that connects any culture with other peoples and with the entire human culture. From this point of view, it is important to further enhance the role of our scholars in the spiritual heritage, historical memory, and literature in the enhancement of knowledge and enlightenment, and in the absence of various manifestations in society. It is our duty to encourage young people to enrich their knowledge of our ancestors and to enhance their cultural and intellectual potential [6, 4].

Conclusion. All in all, human culture, knowledge and enlightenment are the unity of national cultures that manifest themselves through international and universal symbols. In the development of cultures, the unity of nationalism and humanity, as a holistic and multifaceted process, develops on the basis of universal social laws and is the result of the historical and cultural activities of various peoples in education and upbringing process. That is why it is necessary to work towards establishing a new system of education and training [8-131]. It is precisely education and enlightenment that are key to the well-being of humanity, encouraging people to do good, and encouraging generous patience [9].

Enlightenment is the only and most powerful power to free the world, to bring it out of the swamp of ignorance and superstition, to solve its spiritual and economic problems.

Furthermore, in the study of youth problems, the development of systematic, scientific and theoretical knowledge, the broad application of philosophical views, the identification, analysis, historical and logical, universal and national principles of the youth. the use of social and philosophical techniques such as unity. While writing the article a great deal of attention was paid to the issues of ethical relations, upbringing of the person, raising the consciousness of young people and their spiritual life [10].
